

TESTING MY PRODUCT

14/05/13

When I finish to do the 24 rice husk briquettes and I made 4 extra so that I hope when I test them they can burn easily without any problem. At first they didn't burn because they were taken out of the freezer so they were still cold and humid. We try to left it there and let it dry for a moment. After I wait I try it again but it didn't work so I started to become worried and lose hope but then it started to burn for a moment and then it burn really well and then I start to burn the marshmallows with the fire and eat them. Testing my product at first it was a failure but then it turn out well. There is always trial and error because you cant gain your objectives unless you pass through a lot of mistakes and errors.

AT FIRST

AFTER

